Born in Carangola, MG Brazil , Hannah moved to Rio de Janeiro as a baby with her family . As a born composer, she gravitated to the piano and started composing her own melodies at the age of six.

Despite a tumultuous childhood which is another story for another time...She grew up in Flamengo, Copacabana and Rocha Miranda neighborhoods,spent most of her holidays with her grandmother in the countryside, while continuing her studies downtown Rio de Janeiro Hannah lent her talents as a backing vocalist to many Brazilian artists for 7 years. Later inspired by Rio de Janeiro's everyday life, the streets and shanty-towns,the suburban parties and the imperative need for survival, Hannah secured her reputation as an exceptional rapper, singer and composer that has led to her role as a great female representative of the newly evolving R&B+RAP fusion. Bravely assuming the similarities and differences between these two musical divisions of the Black Music,In 1999 she recorded her first album,"Intuitiva",produced by the virtuoso bass player and multi-instrumentalist André Gomes, released by Abril Music Records in March of 2000. Three tracks from this release became national hits. "Demorô", "Periga eu te conquistar" and "Intuitiva" which were aired on radio and played on dance floors nationwide. Hannah's vision encompassed a unique and exciting direction in the Brazilian music scene.

She composed and recorded a new sound that fused R+B and hiphop while perserving the essence of both. Her ability to rap and sing coupled with her soulful and deep lyrics have earned her title as

"Queen of Hip-hop and R&B" Her videoclip("DEMORÔ") was aired on MTV Brasil, where she has appeared on several programs and interviews. In 2002, the Soul artist Lady Zu came back to the dancefloors with a song composed by Hannah Lima and André Gomes, named "Assim não dá" featuring Hannah singing her own Rap and Chorus. In the same year, the R&B Artist Edmon recorded the musical work "Xeque Mate" in his album by Indie Records, the pop artist Deborah Blando recorded "Gota", which was composed in a partnership of the two recording studios, released by Universal Music; the female pop band SNZ recorded "Posso ouvir você chamar" (Warner). In 2004, Hannah had the "Alice no país das armadilhas" album released on Transamérica FM radio station and on hip-hop dancefloors by DJ Saddam. In 2005, she was many times the spotlight in social events as HIP HOP VOADOR and HIP HOP CONTRA A FOME!, while performing at the cultural center CIRCO VOADOR located in Lapa neighborhood Rio de Janeiro. In 2005, she was also in rapper Black Alien's shows, from MTV (MTV no Circo) and MULTISHOW (Festival de Verão de Salvador 2005), as a special guest. Most currently in 2008 the new single "Essa é pra dançar" was released in March, by DJ Saddam on Jovem Pan FM radio station, on the program "Ritmo da Noite Black" also released by DJ A on "Viaduto de Madureira party", by DJ Kalo on Transamérica FM radio station, and on the Adrenalina Black program.

DJ Boneco released the single in the Six Club and the Costa Verde FM radio station hip-hop program. This single is part of the first rap vinyl by a DJ from Rio (DJ Boneco convida). Hannah Lima makes a special feature in "Enquanto eu posso", a track from rapper Mv Bill from the city of Gods's new album (Falcão, o bagulho é doido), released on May of 2006 and also in three songs with rapper Macarrão from Estacio, with rapper Kapella from The community Chatuba from Mesquita.... Hannah Lima's newest and eagerly anticipated album is called "NEGUINHA." On it she composes and writes lyrics exclusively.

The new cd is out now in 2009 and it is produced by André Gomes this project is expected to win fans internationally The first single of the new album Neguinha is called "Por Ser Amor" and was released in november 2009 playing on the Radio FM O DIA, The number 1 Radio of Rio de Janeiro, and after this she was invited to open Akon concert in Rio in January 2010 !!!
